

For Immediate Release:

Hi-Link Computer Corp. Launches New Website Featuring a Vibrant Look and Expanded Services

Stamford, CT - January 18, 2006 – Hi-Link Computer Corp. announced today the launch of their new corporate website www.hi-link.com. The need for network consulting and services in the areas of network security, wireless networking, IP communications, and network management are constantly expanding. As a leading network consulting firm, this new website was designed to enhance Hi-Link's company branding, marketing, and services.

The new website highlights Hi-Link's wide range of services, includes their most prominent partners, an updated resources page allows users to view Hi-Link's newsletters, press releases, seminar information, case studies, and white papers. Hi-Link has also added a Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) page. This page has many questions, but its greatest attribute is it gives the reader a great overview of the company through an easy-to-read Q&A format.

Besides a useful FAQ page, Hi-Link has made their new website more user-friendly with many enhanced features. Hi-Link has added a customer survey to increase communication and feedback with their clients. There is also more client interaction that includes customer testimonials and case studies. Clients and prospects will also find the archived newsletters and seminar presentations a valuable tool.

According to Hi-Link's President Jerry Lin; "In today's technological world it is very important for us to have a corporate website that reflects the extent of our expertise and services. This site is an excellent overview of our company, fully explaining our services, our technical advantages, our marketing activities, and our commitment to each one of our clients. The Internet is one of the most important communication outlets and this new website will allow us an avenue to broaden the reach of our company message."
